

What People Are Saying

July 2016

Bond-like adventures written to entertain but also to promote the values of sustainable development.

The Final Shah Mat – a plot to encourage California to leave the USA – highlights the disconnect between politicians and the people.

The Acionna Projects – a threat to strategic water supplies – highlighting how pressurised our most vital natural resource is.

"More polish than Jeffrey Archer, more realistic than Dan Brown, a plot that twists and turns like Robert Goddard and the panaz of Ian Fleming. It would make a good film!"

"One the most unputdownable books I have read in the last few years"

"My disbelief was suspended by this "can't-put-it-down" pacey thriller. Given that all the characters are so credible, this author clearly knows what makes people tick."

"David Middleton has woven together a rich and informative analysis of the deep environmental crisis in water with a serious thriller set somewhere between Fleming and Le Carre. A good read for anyone interested in the politics of water and how this could play out in the not so distant future."

"You may think you are reading a purely fictitious novel but recent events almost give the book a prophetic nature."

"I sat down one evening to make a start, intending to read a few pages just to "get into it." I was hooked and eventually went to bed at 1 am!"

"David's event was so much more than a book launch. It was informative and insightful with a first class presentation from David, giving us a fascinating insight into the literary world of combining environmentalism with thriller writing."

"I thoroughly enjoyed this book and can't wait for a sequel. I would recommend this book to anyone but especially people who like a well woven action thriller."

"An excellent read - this writer has a talent to enthrall ... I await his next creation"

"The book cleverly mixes fact with fiction and I found myself consulting the appendix at the back on several occasions to check which was which. A fast moving thriller cleverly combining fact and fiction in an area little touched by other writers."

"Congratulations. It was a very well put together presentation. A very topical theme. I'm sure local groups would be interested to hear it."

"This novel is both an excellent read and a powerful commentary on our emerging environmental crisis and how it might be tackled."

I love the way the action switches from Scotland to Las Vegas, the Far East and Eastern Europe. This is a terrific successor to David's first book, The Final Shah Mat, with some of the characters making a reappearance. Read it, enjoy the action and absorb the messages."

Contact

davidm@dmc-sd.co.uk

0121 444 2683

www.davidmiddletoncommunications.com/htt

www.austinmacauley.com/book/acionna-projects

Full quotations and their sources can be provided on request